

Craven Literacy Council Welcomes New Volunteer Tutors

Craven Literacy Council announces 21 volunteers completed the 15 hour new tutor workshop ending on January 29. These individuals are now ProLiteracy Certified Volunteer tutors and are being paired with a student whose literacy needs meet their tutorial skills and availability. Craven Literacy Council is a volunteer based adult literacy program offering instruction free of charge. Tutoring includes one-on-one and small group instruction for students wanting to improve literacy or job skills, acquire Adult High School diploma or GED, improve their English speaking ability or prepare to take the citizenship test. The need is great. Craven Literacy Council currently has almost 50 students waiting for volunteer tutors. Just like these new tutors, you can make a difference in someone's life. Please join us and become a Certified Volunteer Tutor. Your educational background does not matter. What's important is patience, understanding, persistence, flexibility and the desire to help another. Please call April King at 252-637-8079 or visit Craven Literacy Council's website at www.cravenliteracy.org for more information.

Pictured: Seated from left to right: Paula Gabier, Virginia Hall-Brooks, Paula Paganucci. Jo Ann Banks, Lon Shelby
Standing from left to right: Beth Farchild, Ramon Arends, Cathy Creswell, Barbara Bidwell, Roberta Flynn, Sharon Nevels, Josey Newman, Meaghan McGonagle, Deborah Bryant, Mary Spooner, Carol MacPhail, Cathy Dail, John Barlow, Sharon Witcher